

Barranco, September 7, 2012

This week - exactly four years ago! - we celebrated the inauguration of a little place for the smallest and therefore most vulnerable children in Valle 2000, Pamplona Alta (La Rinconada) in San Juan de Miraflores, Lima, Peru. Since that moment over 30 very young children together with their also very young mothers visit this cozy and save haven every day in this still very rough and inhospitable neighborhood. Thanks to the parents and the loving care of the teachers Maria and Charo the place is still one of the best maintained and cleanest of the neighborhood. And thanks to the water recycling system we introduced the tree we planted four years ago is getting quite big and even houses a birds nest!

When we built the place we decided to cover it with a tin roof. At that moment the cheapest and most obvious solution, but after four years of resisting the harsh climate and especially the violence of youth gangs it was slowly giving up even showing some nasty, rusty holes. Thanks to the never lasting help of our friends in Europa, in this case especially of the organization SWO-docu of Switzerland, last Wednesday we could surprise children, parents and teachers on their birthday party with a beautiful new roof.

...nasty rusty holes...

Un abrazo fuerte desde Lima,
the Aynimundo team

After four years the roof needs to be redone

Hooligan resistant polycarbonate plates

Ready!

and, of course, a nice party to celebrate!